BEN BUTLER'S SPEECH

WHY HE HAS NOT THROWN THOSE BRICKS—WHAT HE THINKS OF THE POLICIES AND THE CABINET.

At the meeting of the Middlesex Club at the Parker House in Boston last Saturday Gen. B. F. Butler, who has preserved such unwonted silence for some time past, made quite an extensive speech, from which we quote the concluding portion as reported by the [illegible]

THE SOUTHERN POLICY.

In regard to reconstruction he said that in talks with the President last March he found that he was imbued with the idea that he could build up the Republican party in the South. Gen. Butler continued: I thought afterwards he might know more about it than I did, and I was in for a fair trial of the experiment. He still seems to have the belief, and is honest in it. I do not believe it can succeed, and probably almost all Republicans have the same feeling. There is probably not a man who can understand how one can be so thoroughly imbued with that notion. We must remember that the truth is never spoken in the White House. The President never has an opportunity of hearing the truth. When people go to the White House to ask favors they very naturally say to the President what he is after, and they think the people are with him and are supporting him. They certainly could never think their chance of obtaining an office any better if they should say to the President, "You are all wrong in your policy and the people are opposed to you." If a man wants a Post Office in Hogtown he is very sure not to adopt the latter theory. Mr. Van Buren told an intimate friend in 1840 that you can never hear the truth at the White House. To illustrate, Mr. Van Buren said: "The next morning after election I woke up with a firm conviction that I had been re-elected President, as that I was to have my breakfast. I had been told by everybody that it was all right, and I was sure of a good majority. I did not find out that I had been beaten till fort[illegible] night later. There was probably not another man in the United States over twenty-one years of age who had not known for three months previous to the election that Mr. Van Buren was beaten."

I have appeared in the unusual role of pacificator. People have come to me [illegible] more irritated against the President so [illegible] I have told [illegible] wait a little while and see how it will work. That has been the attitude of the Republican party in Congress. It is strange that the President does not [illegible] the true state of things. It is said the President is to be complimented for withdrawing the troops from the States of Louisiana and South Carolina. I do not know how [illegible] he is going to be commended for sending one hundred men from one barracks to another or for not sending them. [illegible] State that [illegible] for an [illegible] President was to be praised because he withdrew the troops [illegible] another part of the same speech [illegible] the President was obliged to do it. I do not see what merit it is for a man to do what he is obliged to do. [illegible] he [illegible] down [illegible] because I go down.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

He said that civil service reform was [illegible] in Washington and he did not [illegible] by [illegible] other [illegible] opportunity to [illegible] He did not know what it meant [illegible] he had been in Congress he had never heard it mentioned in Washington only now and then as a butt for a joke. Since the Massachusetts election even the President [illegible] the plank of his platform so far as it refers to the [illegible] of office holders in elections. He did not think there was any man so stupid in politics, not even James Freeman Clarke, who concedes that the Republican party is divided on this or that [illegible] the Democrats come into power, that they will remove every Republican office holder in the country and put Democrats in their places regardless of civil service reform or any other reform. These [illegible] reforms are principles which will do for an Utopia, but in practical everyday life we must consider what is necessary and practical, and govern ourselves accordingly.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

He said he was hopeful for the future of the Republican party, and said there was no disunion in the Republican party in Congress. The Republican majority in the Senate and four-fifths of the Republicans of the House consider the present Southern policy of the President a mistaken one. But the general feeling has been to prevent any collision. The President is honest in his intention and we were willing to see it tried. We have felt on this subject that the least said is the soonest mended. We hope that the President will in time see his mistake and join hands with the Republicans. We have kept silent on these questions, but they must be met sooner or later. The President has had an opportunity to ascertain the truth. Of course it must be considered that he has a Cabinet a majority of whom when appointed were not known as Republicans. I think that will have to be reorganized, and that it soon will be.

The President will have to elect with which of the two parties he will go. By next February he will have to decide whether he will take the Republicans into his counsels or join the Democrats. The present state of things cannot continue. No man can successfully ride two horses going in opposite directions, however kind or wise he may be. If he joins the Republican party there will be the issue of finance, the tariff, economic questions of government and other matters to divide upon. If the President decides to join the Republicans the party will be as powerful as it ever has been. The Republican party North will be united, and we can undoubtedly carry New York State and this would give us victory in 1880. (Applause.)

The [illegible] house connected with the box factory owned by E. J. Leighton, and situated in Gray, took fire Friday night and was totally consumed. [illegible] Fire caught from the heating apparatus.

On the 11th inst., Mr. James Lord, who has lived on the old Deacon Storer place at Wells for many years, went out to chop wood. Not returning at the proper time search was made for him, when he was found lying on the ground where he had been chopping, in an insensible condition. The snow was trampled down all around him, from [illegible] inferred that he had a fit of some kind. He was taken to his residence, where he died the next day, says the Journal.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF PHARMACY.

It will be remembered by most of our readers that the last legislature created a board of Pharmacy to examine apothecaries and druggists to prevent persons not properly instructed in pharmacy from engaging in the exceptionally hazardous business of compounding and dispensing medicines and poisons. Other States and countries have enacted similar laws, and at last Maine followed the example. The Commissioners are [illegible] Cummings, Charles K. Partridge and N. S. Harlow, and this Commission [illegible] have prepared their report to be submitted to the Governor and Executive Council, from which the following extracts are made:

Realizing the need of some method of distinguishing between skilled and unskilled apothecaries, our best physicians and other citizens who have considered the question approve the action of the legislature in passing this law, and with scarcely an exception our intelligent druggists and apothecaries have agreed with the Board [illegible] have done what lay in their power to make it popular and effective. The Commissioners as a Board have held eleven sessions since their organization April 20th. Two of these meetings were held in Bangor, two in Augusta and seven in Portland. Thirty applicants for registration have been examined. Twenty-two certificates of registry have been authorized to issue under the provisions of Section 3 and Section 4 of the act, each stating that the holder has been examined and found skilled in pharmacy and [illegible] authorized to engage in the business of [illegible] apothecary. Of these twenty-one successful examinations six have opened places of business for themselves or bought established stores, two were already in business, while most of the others are engaged as trusted assistants of other druggists and pharmacists. The names and residences of those registered in this class are found in the Appendix.

Under the provisions of Section 4 the Commissioners have received from those established in the business at the passage of the act, 216 applications for registration accompanied by evidences of qualification and competency. Certificates of registration have been ordered to issue to [illegible] of this number covering the business of [illegible] apothecary stores, two or more partners having frequently registered under this provision of the law.

The Commissioners have hitherto required from [illegible] per cent. to 67 per cent. of correct answers to questions proposed before granting certificates. It is proposed to gradually increase the requirements.

Patents have been issued to Maine inventors as follows: Ice-cutting machine, Chas. C. Springer, Yarmouth; windlass and capstan attachment, Thomas J. Southard and Richmond, assignor to T. J. THE BOSTON ADVERTISER HARD PUSHED

If any of the active or retired veterans of journalism should be asked to specify the cheapest and weakest of all the devices resorted to by newspapers on the lame side of a political controversy, not one of them would hesitate a moment before replying that the stalest and most pusillanimous make-shift known to the craft is the parade of anonymous quotations from persons alleged to be "influential," "prominent," "well-informed," etc., as representing public sentiment more reliably than the newspaper of the locality, whose opinions it is desired to antagonize. So universally is this recognized among the better portion of the press, that opinions and assertions upon controverted points quoted anonymously against a public journal, as representing public sentiment, are considered the familiar signals of distress, and the "influential citizen," "gentleman of prominence," "valued correspondent," etc., are regarded as the equivalent of the "intelligent contraband" who was so recklessly overworked in the papers during the war. When the Boston Advertiser has to resort to this feeble method of warfare we need no other proof that it is hard pushed, and so we smiled as we read this paragraph in its editorial columns a few days ago:

> The Republicans of Bangor and of all that section of the Pine Tree State have had slight chance of late to hear what the President has to say for himself, or what those who believe in his wisdom and patriotism have to say for him. Nevertheless, whenever an issue can be made between the President and his enemies there is not a doubt that the President will find everywhere a great majority on his side. "Three-fourths of the bone, muscle and brains of the Republican party here," a correspondent at Bangor writes to us, "give a hearty 'God-speed' to the President and his general policy." And a letter from an esteemed correspondent in Somerset county says in the same spirit: "We [the Maine Republicans] are on the side of good government as it is represented by the President of our choice, and we do not agree with those of our representatives in Washington who throw obstacles in his way."—Boston Advertiser, Dec. 21.

This is melancholy and it is funny. It is melancholy that a Boston paper which claims circulation and influence in this vicinity should feel obliged to complain that our people have had but a "slight chance, to hear what the President has to say for himself" or what his supporters have to say for him. That is a sad confession of inability. It is also funny, almost to impudence, to insinuate that the local papers have not given the President a "chance." So far as his anti-Republican policies, which the Advertiser champions, are concerned, the local Democratic organ has given the most constant aid and comfort, and our own files will show that we have printed the documents, statements and evidence bearing upon all phases of the political controversy, with a fullness and fairness unknown to the columns of the Advertiser. We challenge a comparison, and tell the Advertiser that its innuendoes come with a poor grace from a Boston paper which has excluded the utterances of William Lloyd Garrison upon topics of vital interest to the Republican Party, and which devoted numerous labored editorial denunciations to a speech of Senator Conkling which it never laid before its readers, while it gave the address of his antagonist on the same occasion at full length. We will engage to show that in spite of its larger size and superior facilities we have presented our readers with at least twice the amount of official, historical, documentary and other evidence essential to an intelligent understanding of the issue of Policy vs. Republicanism that has appeared in the Boston Advertiser. But it has found "a correspondent at Bangor," who speaks for "three-fourths" of the "brains of the Republican party here," and he says they are enthusiastic for Policy. Well, the Advertiser might profitably consider that if the statement were true it would not prove that our opinions are wrong or that the fundamental principles of the Republican Party ought to be abandoned to please the President and Southern gentlemen. But this anonymous embodiment of Bangor opinion is an old acquaintance. He always turns up when mischief is brewing, and his appearance is always a healthy sign for Republicanism in this vicinity. We heard from him last in 1872, when the Greeley bubble was undergoing inflation. He wanted the New Yorkers to know that THE WHIG did not give Greeley "a chance," but that public sentiment was enthusiastically for him. So he appeared early in the Tribune thus:

> BANGOR, May 6, 1872.
> To Horace Greeley: The Cincinnati ticket is the all-engrossing topic of conversation here. The office-holders are savage, but the ground tier—mechanics, rivermen, laborers of all classes and many merchants—take a disinterested and comprehensive view of the subject and declare for the ticket.

On the 15th of the same month he came to the surface again in this style:

> A private letter from one of the foremost [etc. etc. etc.] written from Bangor Me., on the 11th inst. says: If this part of Maine is a sample of the Union Mr. Greeley will be the next President.

And again, a few days later, the Tribune announced him as "an influential Republican of Bangor, Maine," and gleefully quoted him as follows:

> It gives me great pleasure to inform you that the nomination of Horace Greeley for President of the United States, is received with marked favor by a very large portion of the citizens of this city and vicinity. Many prominent and influential men declare positively for him and will do all in their power to have his nomination confirmed or adopted by the Philadelphia Convention.

Well, we did not believe in him then, and we said so. We regarded him as a humbug, and continued to assure the public that Bangor and Eastern Maine would extend no comfort to the coalition against the Republican Party. There were papers then, however, as eager to quote him as the Advertiser is now, and his oracular messages were so freely circulated among the Democratic organs, that some of the sachems here began to feel embarrassed by the expectations only raised to be crushingly disappointed. So, in August before the election, one of our prominent Democratic politicians, and a Greeley man of course, addressed a letter of caution to a Minnesota paper which was sent to us by a subscriber, in which the writer stepped on that "influential Republican," "foremost," etc., in this heartless fashion:

> But I only write, as you will see, for warning; don't brag on Maine. We expect the Granites will carry this city by 500 majority.

This city was selected for the great opening onslaught of the Greeley forces, and the "intelligent contraband," or rather the "influential Republican," multiplied liberally in the columns of newspapers, assured the public that Republican Bangor would be ablaze for the new departure. In due time the Republican bugle sounded the rally, and we give the result in the following extract from a column and a half report telegraphed to the Boston Advertiser by its its then special correspondent, now the chief editor of that other policy organ, the Globe:

> The grandest of all Maine Republican rallies for many a day, one of the greatest of the campaign, not alone in this State but in the country, has been held here to-day and this evening. It has been of the rare old-fashioned sort—enthusiastic, free, and rattling. The call was addressed to the true men of Bangor and the Penobscot valley, but it was answered by hosts from almost every part of the State. Men, and women too, journeyed hither a hundred miles to participate in the proceedings of the day and attest their loyalty to the cause. Crowds came from the very heart of the distant Aroostook valley; from Portland and vicinity, so large in numbers as uncomfortably to pack a train of seventeen cars; from all the new towns along the several railroads concentrating at this point; and from all the neighboring villages. So the streets have been filled with people, and the city, decked out with gay banners and flags and mottoes, has looked as on a general holiday.
> The meeting did not close until near midnight and the streets were not quiet until long after. The demonstration cannot be surpassed, and the enthusiasm and satisfaction of its managers are complete to-night. The fact is, Maine is aroused, and she will remain so till election tide.

Maine was aroused and at election-tide the prophesied "Greeley wave" was swept out of sight by over thirty-two thousand Republican majority for Grant and Wilson, of which Bangor furnished within three votes of one thousand, Penobscot County over five thousand and the Fourth District seven thousand five hundred. We have not heard from that "influential Republican" since, until he popped up the other day in the Advertiser.

But we have a word to say to that paper which can in no way be affected by anything said or written by anonymous correspondents, influential or otherwise. The Advertiser takes issue with us for opposing the "Southern policy" of the President. In 1872 Charles Sumner, a Senator of Massachusetts, published a letter on the eve of the Maine election in behalf of the Greeley campaign, and containing the very essence and doctrine of what President Hayes has declared his "policy." If it is right now it was right then; we denounced it as wrong then and we declare it wrong now. How did the Advertiser, which supports the "conciliation policy" now, respond to the specious appeal to "shake hands across the bloody chasm" then? Let its editorial columns of August 2, 1872, answer the question in these words:

> There may be those who will take the trouble to answer Mr. Sumner's letter point by point. Let them be assured that it will be labor lost. The notorious cause of his apostasy is a long-standing hatred of the President. It is to adorn and dignify the details of his personal quarrel that he makes use of his most inconsequential letter. For this he proposes to betray the political party that has trusted him, to sacrifice the confidence of a State which has honored him, and enlist as many negroes as he can in a wild crusade to reverse the policy of the Government. The magnitude of the plan dwarfs the miserable pretexts on which he professes to rest his cause. To mention them is to answer them.

The "policy of the government" which the Advertiser then denounced Sumner as an apostate for attempting "to reverse," was the policy of national protection of the rights of every citizen, which the same paper now stigmatizes as "bayonet rule."

The Advertiser takes issue with us because we insist that it was the imperative duty of the President to recognize and sustain the authority of Governor Packard and the Republican Legislature, declared by the United States Senate "the de facto de jure government of Louisiana." Have we abandoned Republican doctrine or has the Advertiser. We appeal squarely to its own record. When a revolution was organized by Penn against the Kellogg State Government in 1874 as revolution was organized by Nicholls against the Packard State Government in 1876-7, the Advertiser proclaimed the Republican doctrine which we maintain to-day. Here is precisely what it said when Penn attempted what Nicholls has accomplished by the aid of President Hayes:

> The rebellion is not only against Louisiana, but against the Sovereignty of the Nation. It has not succeeded until it has conquered the United States. The despatch of the rebel Penn to the President is almost unexampled in its cool impudence. It is most like the impertinence we were made familiar with in 1860 and 1861 while the South was initiating hostilities. "All we ask is to be let alone." That is the one request that cannot be heeded. The National Government is bound by every consideration of self-respect and duty to vindicate its sovereignty so flagrantly insulted. It cannot recognize the Penn usurpation. It must overthrow it. No State in the Union is safe from the surprise of conspiracy if the Louisiana rebels are permitted to enjoy their triumph.
> The Nation has a plain duty. The President apprehends it precisely. It will be performed without delay and without compromise. Two words, which ought to have a well defined meaning to the people who have committed this wrong express the whole duty of the mob. They are "unconditional surrender."

The Advertiser takes issue with us because we refuse to sustain a "policy" which deprives the Republican majorities in Southern States of all their political rights, and which bases itself openly on the ground that the "native whites" are entitled to rule, irrespective of the privileges sacredly guaranteed the colored citizens, the exercise of which in the face of outrage and massacre, placed Rutherford B. Hayes in the Presidential chair. We hold now, as we have hitherto held that equality of civil and political rights is a fundamental principle of the Republican Party. In September, 1874, the Advertiser agreed with us, and in reply to a correspondent, who argued just as the Advertiser argues now, that paper editorially and emphatically expressed these sentiments:

> But there is one sentence in our correspondent's letter which plainly shows that he differs from us in a fundamental matter and we are quite sure that he has had no reason for supposing that we could ever agree. "I am satisfied" he says; "That you cannot have in any Southern State a genuine Republican government and a system of essential negro equality." For our part we are satisfied that there can never be in any Southern State, or indeed anywhere else on the globe, a genuine Republican government without the essential equality in political and civil rights of all citizens of whatever race color or condition.

The Advertiser and its "correspondent at Bangor" can digest these tid-bits of political history at their leisure. In the meantime we would suggest that he has been brought out at least three months late, and fails to appear imposing at a time when there is hardly a professedly Republican paper in the country outside of Boston, that continues to support Policy against Principle.

The Tribune's despatches report that Western and Southern men favor a revival of various of the old war taxes, including those on tea and coffee, so as to lessen the taxation on whisky and tobacco.

"Gail Hamilton never strikes twice in the same place."—Ex. Good reason why—the place is gone after she has struck once.—N. Y. Herald.

The finical New York Post indulges in some hypercritical comments on "The President's English," based on two unimportant words, concerning one of which it says:

> He says something about "numerous questions in regard to passports." As "numerous" means "consisting of great numbers," as in the case of an assembly or an army, it is not easy to see how questions can be numerous, but they may be many and that is what the President meant. We have observed a similar misuse of the word in the London Times and in one or two of the London weekly journals.

The Post attaches a great deal of importance to this sort of word-quibbling, but the President or the London journals would have failed to find the important distinction it asserts in either of the standard American Dictionaries. Worcester gives the following definitions:

NUMEROUS, a. Consisting of a great number, being many.

MANY, a. Consisting of a great number, numerous.

And Webster gives these:

NUMEROUS, a. Being many, consisting of a great number of individuals.

MANY, a. Comprising or consisting of a great number of individuals, numerous.

The Champions of the Administration style of civil service reform are constantly citing the efficiency and high character of the Army and Navy corps as proofs of the benefit of divorcing the public service from all connection with politics. If the Administration keeps on as it has been doing recently the quality and esprit of those two branches will be likely to deteriorate. A surgeon who deserted and was captured while attending a jollification of rebels and their sympathizers at Baltimore during the war, who was dismissed the service and afterwards permitted to resign, was a few days ago restored to his rank and position on the Naval Register and empowered to claim some $25,000 for back pay. Since then a Major Runkle, who was cashiered from the army by court-martial in 1873, sentenced to pay a fine of $7,500 and to be imprisoned for four years, has been similarly rewarded. In 1873 the Secretary of War, in consideration of the service of Runkle in the war, remitted the fine and imprisonment. On the plea that the Secretary's ruling should have been submitted to the President for approval it has been brought before President Hayes and he disapproved the sentence and restored Runkle to his rank with about $12,000 back pay. Even the Army and Navy cannot stand a great deal of that sort of reform.

HOW HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF. In looking over our files the other day we noticed many striking illustrations of the repetition of history. For instance what could be more applicable to Stanley Matthews' case to-day than this confession of his in a letter written May 6, 1872, shortly after he assisted at the Cincinnati fiasco:

> "I am greatly chagrined at the whole matter, my own participation in it included, and have concluded perhaps not sufficiently soon, that as a politician and president maker, I am not a success."

And this hint of Nast to Carl Schurz in Aug. 1872 has quite as much point at the present time as then:

> A HINT TO CARL. Nast, in the last Harper's Weekly, depicts Carl Schurz sitting abject and melancholy before his piano, on which he has just been playing "My Heart is on the Rhine," while Brother Jonathan, regarding him cynically, remarks that there is no law compelling him to stay in this country. The water-front is seen in the back ground and on one of the piers a poster announces "Steamers for Germany nearly every day."

The Concord Monitor says that there will be no division among the Republicans of New Hampshire on the President's policy; that Congressman Blair sounded the keynote in his recently published letter, and it is being echoed by all phases of Republican thought in the State.

Men protect themselves against the loss of their own destructible property by insurance, and rightly count it a wrong against themselves, their families, and their creditors, if they neglect to do so.

A man's life is his family's property—that which they depend upon for the present and future, and they are in constant danger of losing this dependence. He has voluntarily assumed their entire care, and is therefore bound to guard them against want. By a life policy he can have at once, and always ready for them, the money value of his life; and in no other way can he so certainly do it.

THE HORRORS OF PLEVNA.

Servian Successes.

ERZEROUM INVESTED

Horrible Reports of the Condition of Plevna

NEW YORK Dec 26 Details of the condition of Plevna when captured confirm the reported horrors The famished dogs were feeding on the corpses of the dead in the files of the still living wounded The savage growls of the greedy brutes as they tore the putrid flesh of the dead or crunched bones between their teeth, the cries and groans of the wounded as they vainly struggled with the dogs might be heard for miles around and made the soul sick. Birds were picking at skulls hopping from body to body with beaks and plumage besmeared with human blood and screaming with fiendish delight Dogs fighting among themselves and birds struggled with birds for the possession of a morsel of human flesh and most indescribable horrors prevailed

The Dead and Wounded

In one house alone 37 dead and 53 wounded Turks were found some of the former half decomposed and putrid and the wounded in a condition that can be more easily imagined than described Some of the wounded were able to crawl about and clutched at old morsels of food found in the hands of the dead, devouring it with fierce avidity but thousands, utterly helpless awaited death or succor with a listless fatalism

The Prisoners—Osman Pasha's Cruelty

Eighteen hundred prisoners were huddled together on the banks of the Vid and the horrors of their position equalled those of the plague Living and dead were piled together promiscuously in heaps like wood and carted away There were only three carts available for this work and the confusion was indescribable

Osman's bravery is stained and blackened by his treatment of the Russian wounded that fell into his hands His gallant defense of Plevna for a moment blinded the victors and Europe to the fact that all prisoners were butchered by the troops under Osman's command

France to Remain Passive

PARIS Dec 26 The Temps alluding to the report that active intercourse had been going on between Paris and London with a view to establishing an understanding about the Eastern question says it is perfectly certain that the French government does not intend departing from its attitude of reserve to play an active part in Eastern affairs

The Turks Full of Fight

LONDON, Dec 26 The Times Vienna correspondent says intelligence from Constantinople leaves little doubt that the rejection of the Turkish note by the Powers has caused the war party to recover full sway above all.

The reaction produced in the feelings of the Sultan by the humiliating rejection of the note is deemed regrettable

Reports of an Attempted Coup d'etat

PARIS, Dec 26 Much comment has been caused by a decree signed by President McMahon cashiering the captain of a regiment of the line stationed at Limoges, who on the 13th inst, when orders were received to prepare to march to Paris, declared he would not abet a coup d'etat

It is probable that on the reassembling of the Chamber a motion will be made for the appointment of a committee to inquire whether orders have really been given for a coup d'etat The radical journals state that the troops at Limoges were supplied with ammunition and two days rations and held in readiness to start for Paris

MORE SOUTHERN CHIVALRY

[From the New York Times]

The people of the Southern States have recently displayed a commendable desire to be considered law abiding and law fearing Their wishes in this direction have not been thwarted by the bloodthirsty negroes the Republicans have made no attempt to go to the polls the best of feeling exists between the races and the country has not for a long time been entertained with the oft told story regarding the two unarmed white gentlemen who while riding through a wood were set upon by a score or so of infuriated blacks and only after the utmost difficulty succeeded in killing four of the negroes, and putting the others to flight. Pleasant little romances of this kind, which used to be so numerous are now as the Message of President Hayes intimates, of exceedingly rare occurrence The gentlemen of the South however not to fall [illegible] of practice, are devoting themselves with more than ordinary assiduity to [illegible] particular what they call unfortunate personal difficulties but which in the more matter of fact but perhaps less chivalric North would be regarded as more or less cold blooded murder

An affair of the kind mentioned which has just occurred at a little town in Mississippi known as Mississippi City, illustrate to a nicety the peculiar way in which the people of the cotton States regard such occurrences From local sources—Democratic sources all of them it appears that as Gen Wirt Adams a well known gentleman of the place, was standing talking to a number of friends he was approached by an almost equally well known Mississippian named Sweatman who spoke to him offensively The General according to the local chronicler who treats the whole occurrence in the coolest and most unconcerned sort of fashion believing that the offense was premeditated and being unarmed himself deferred further notice of the assault until another occasion So ended the first act of this truly Southern drama A few days after Gen Adams entered the bar room of a hotel and noticing that Sweatman was sitting in the place approached him and said, Mr Sweatman you took advantage of me the other day when I was wholly unprepared to use some language which was offensive to me Upon this as the story goes Sweatman sprang to his feet and knowing from Adams manner what he had to expect, quickly drew his pistol and fired but without effect, in the direction of the General The latter then drew his weapon which was of course, ready at hand, and with lightning like rapidity emptied four or five barrels into the body of his adversary One shot took effect in his mouth knocking him down Still from the floor he managed to fire three shots more and then fell under a table exhausted from great loss of blood His wounds will prove fatal, and so ends the second act — It will be noticed that during it no effort was made to separate the principal actors A dozen men stood by but made no effort to prevent manslaughter

The third and closing scene of this true representation of Southern life displays Gen Adams as "a gallant gentleman who vindicated his honor and the fair fame of his native State Immediately after the affair he went and delivered himself up to the proper authorities, but was promptly released on $1,500 ball " Fifteen hundred dollar's ball for the gallant gentleman who had emptied something like a quarter of a pound of cold lead into the body of a man who had "used some language which was offensive to him," fifteen hundred dollars to satisfy the forms of law and soothe the feelings of the dying man's unhappy wife and unfortunate children But to still further quote from the local account of this exceedingly characteristic "difficulty," Gen Adams was not without sympathy. Immediately after the affair became generally known, "ex-President Davis, though in feeble health, with characteristic generosity hastened through a raw atmosphere to his attached friend, Gen. Adams, to render whatever assistance was in his power " Still further on, in the account of the shooting, which appears in the Jackson (Miss.) Clarion, the public is informed that "the numerous friends of Gen Adams will need no assurance that his conduct in the affair was characteristic of the gallant and knightly gentleman that he has always shown himself to be in peace or war,"

And this, as we need not assure those who know anything of the peculiarities of Southern life, will be the end of the whole matter; there will not be even a farce of a trial, for there are now no radical officials to carry on the prosecution The man who comes off victor is greeted with applause and public commendation "He has "shot his man," vindicated his honor, which was so hurt by what he himself calls "some offensive language." For the victim of the affair, however—the dying, or by this time it may be the dead man and his grief-stricked family—there is no word of condolence or pity It is difficult for the people of the North to understand such a situation Neither of the men engaged in the disgraceful bar-room broil were drunkards, thieves, or gamblers. On the contrary both were of high standing in the community and known in Southern parlance, as "perfect gentlemen" That they have tried to murder each other will make no disagreeable change in their social relations Indeed, the "best shot" will be courted and caressed, and even in the house of God smiled upon by men and women alike For crimes of the kind in question there seems to be absolutely no punishment in the South The laws are powerless against a diseased public sentiment.

CHRISTMAS DAY

Services at the St John's Episcopal and the Catholic Churches

In accordance with the usual custom the St John's Episcopal church was finely decorated and the services were unusually interesting Rev G T Packard preached a fine sermon from the following text "For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord The music was particularly well rendered

The day was very appropriately observed at the Catholic churches At St Mary's Roman Catholic church mass was observed at five, eight and half past ten o'clock The church was handsomely trimmed with evergreen and presented a fine appearance Rev Father Murphy celebrated mass and preached the sermon The music, Hayden's First Mass, Millard's Veni Creator " and "Benedictus" and "Adeste Fideles " was very well rendered

At St John's Roman Catholic church mass was observed at the same hours as above Here the church was also beautifully decorated and every seat occupied while a number were obliged to stand during the services. The music for the occasion was arranged by Mr W R McQuown, who presided at the organ, and the fine manner in which it was rendered reflected great credit on him for his untiring efforts Rev Father Duddy celebrated mass and Rev Father McSweeney preached a discourse on "The birth of Christ " A choir composed of seventeen fine voices sang Mozart's 12th Mass, with the exception of the "Credo" from Farmer's Mass. Mr L E Holden sang "Veni Creator," with fine voice and execution and all present were delighted with the selection, Miss Mary Stewart sang, "Ethcarnatus est," very sweetly The St John Band was present and played, "Adeste Fideles," as the audience passed from the church. The members of the choir were invited to the residence of Father McSweeney, where they were served with an elegant breakfast At half-past ten the church was again crowded to overflowing and the same ceremony was repeated, the only change in the music being that Mr. Geo. Slisby sang the "Veni Creator," instead of Mr. Holden. The Band was also present and rendered the same selection as the people [illegible] the church

We can get a pretty good idea of the immense extent and benefit of the order of Patrons of Husbandry in our country, when we state that it has twenty State purchasing agencies, three of which do an annual business of $200,000. During the past year it has had in active operation five banking associations, one of which (at San Francisco) has a capital of $5,000,000, of which $500,000 was paid in; five steamboats or packet lines; thirty manufacturing associations, whose capital ranges from $100,000 to $500,000; fifty associations for shipping purposes; thirty-two grain elevators, sixteen grist mills, one of which produces one hundred barrels of flour per day; twenty-two ware-houses for storing goods; three tanneries and six smitheries. These are distinctly grange enterprises, started with capital contributed by members of the order, managed by them and producing for their benefit. In addition there has been established one hundred and sixty grange stores to furnish members with supplies at wholesale prices, plus freight and hauling—the customers who are stock holders dividing the profits. The order has dedicated one hundred and forty-four halls, built or bought to serve as places of meeting, one of which cost $100,000.—Mass. Ploughman.

A Georgia cyclone, the other day among its other strange freaks, blew a young woman out of the bed she was sleeping in and landed her in a peach tree at some distance away without causing her any serious injury. The stumps of several pine trees were also torn up by the roots, as well as wire grass and cotton stalks.

She returned his love, but even then he wasn't satisfied. She said she didn't want it.

NOBLE ILLUSTRATION.—Lord Coleridge, in addressing the people of Birmingham, used the following illustration: "Travellers tell us that in some of the Eastern seas, where those wonderful coral islands exist, the insects that form the coral within the reefs, where they are under the shelter of protecting rocks, out of the reach of wind and wave, work quicker, and their work is apparently sound and good. But on the other hand, those little workers who work outside those reefs, in the foam and dash of waves, are fortified and hardened, and their work is firmer and more enduring. And so I believe it is with men. The more their minds are braced up by conflict, by the necessity of forming opinions upon difficult subjects, the better they will be qualified to go through the hard wear and tear of the world, the better they will be able to hold their own in that conflict of opinion which after all it is man's duty to meet."

A little five-year-old fellow came up to his mother the other morning, and with great earnestness, said, "Mother, I saw something run across the kitchen floor this morning and it hadn't any legs, either; what do you suppose it was?" The mother's curiosity was excited at the apparent strangeness of the supposed animal, and not knowing what else to say, said she supposed it was a worm, or something of the sort she did not know what. Having for some time enjoyed his mother's inability to solve the problem, he said, "It was some water."

Men, like peaches and pears, grow sweet a little while before they begin to decay.

Another iconoclast now steps to the front, and with an old document written by one of the original Boston tea-spillers proves that there were present at that interesting seance "no white men disguised as Indians." Oh, hang it, don't lop the thing over limb by limb that way. Make a clean thing of it. There was no tea, there was no ships, there was no trouble, no stamp act, no dissatisfaction, no colonies, no war, no Fourth of July, no nothing. George Washington was a myth; the Revolutionary War was a hypothesis; we are merely supposed to be existing, and nothing is real but the historical moths that destroy everything we ever believed. By heaven, there were white men disguised as Indians at that tea party, thousands of 'em. We swear it, we know it, we were there and saw 'em. Put that in the school books.—Hawkeye.

CATARRH

Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and of Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen,—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell, which were wholly gone, are now fully restored, and my general health is much improved.—Yours,

MELBOURNE H. FORD,
Short-Hand Writer.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 3, 1876.

LATER.

Gentlemen: The package of SANFORD'S CURE arrived here to-night all right. I don't know what I should have done if it had not been for this remedy. I have tried Nasal Douches and everything else, and although I have been able to stop the offensive discharge, I have not been able to recover my senses of taste and smell until I tried SANFORD'S CURE. You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.

Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 15, 1876.

LETTER CARRIERS.

All letters are delivered free by carriers when addressed to street and number. People should inform their correspondents of above and have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons leaving their address at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number on, and they will be delivered earlier than if the same is put on at the office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extremes of their routes.

Collections are made morning and evening in season for important mails—the down town boxes fifteen and the up town boxes thirty minutes before closing mails at the office.

Holidays the Carrier's Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 8½ to 9½ A. M., and from 7½ to 8 P. M. Sundays from 9½ to 9¾ A. M.

Any irregularities in the Carriers' department should be reported to the office.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return, across the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, (samples of which may be seen at the Cashier's window,) when ordered in lots of not less than 500.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if unclaimed within thirty days, or less, written or printed, with the writer's name, post office and State, across the left end of the envelope, on the face side, will be complied with.

☞ The public are earnestly recommended to procure Stamped envelopes with printed return request, as the expense is less, and letters thus endorsed, if not delivered to the person addressed, are returned to the writer free of charge.

First class envelopes of above furnished at $32.80 per thousand.

MOTHERS, READ THIS.

A GREAT BLESSING.

VEGETINE

Worth a Dollar a Drop.

SOUTH BOSTON, July 17, 1871.

Mothers, are your little ones fretful and is your patience most exhausted in vain efforts to please them? I can sympathize with you and can tell you what will make your little child quiet, give it a good appetite, and prepare for it hours of sweet, sound sleep.

My little girl is two and a half years old, and during that time, I have not had two consecutive nights' rest. She has been sick a number of times, and no one seemed to know what was troubling her. It was hard to hear her little fretful cry and not know what to do for her. I doctored her for worms, but it did no good, and I was nearly tired out with sleepless nights and troublesome days.

I heard of the Vegetine and determined to try it. It has proved a blessing to me and my child. It has cleansed from her stomach and bowels the sores which kept gathering there, and now she sleeps soundly from her bedtime until very, very late in the morning, besides a long nap at mid-day. Her appetite is good; and, in fact, she is like a different child. I often say the true value of this medicine to me is a dollar a drop. Try it. Cleanse the humors from your children's blood while they are young. Try it, and you will join with me in calling it a great blessing.

MRS. ELLEN L. CLAPP,
375 Tudor Street.

What I Know about Vegetine.

SOUTH BOSTON.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.

Dear Sir—I have had considerable experience with the Vegetine. For Dyspepsia, General Debility and impure blood, the Vegetine is superior to anything which I have ever used. I commenced taking Vegetine about the middle of last winter, and after using a few bottles it entirely cured me of dyspepsia, and my blood never was in so good condition as at the present time. It will afford me pleasure to give any further particulars relative to what I know about this good medicine to any one who will call or address me at my residence, 86 Athens street.

Very respectfully,
MONROE PARKER,
86 Athens street.

GREAT BENEFIT.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 26, 1872.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir,—The two bottles of Vegetine furnished me by your agent, my wife has used with great benefit.

For a long time she has been troubled with dizziness and costiveness. These troubles are now entirely removed by the use of Vegetine.

She was also troubled with Dyspepsia, and General Debility, and has been greatly benefited.

THOMAS GILMORE, 229½ Walnut street.

EXPERIENCE OF YEARS.

CHARLESTOWN.

H. R. STEVENS.

Dear Sir,—This is to certify that I have used your "Blood Preparation" in my family for several years, and think that, for Scrofula or Cankerous Humors or Rheumatic affections, it cannot be excelled; and as a blood purifier and spring medicine it is the best thing I have ever used, and I have used almost everything. I can cheerfully recommend it to any one in need of such a medicine.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. A. A. DINSMORE, 19 Russell Street.

A Source of Great Anxiety.

BOSTON, MASS., June 5, 1872.

My daughter has received great benefit from the use of Vegetine. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all of her friends. A few bottles of the Vegetine restored her health, strength and appetite.

WHAT IS VEGETINE!

It is a compound extracted from barks, roots and herbs. It is Nature's Remedy. It is perfectly harmless from any bad effect upon the system. It is nourishing and strengthening. It acts directly upon the blood. It quiets the nervous system. It gives you good, sweet sleep at night. It is a great panacea for our aged fathers and mothers, for it gives them strength, quiets their nerves, and gives them Nature's sweet sleep, as has been proved by many an aged person. It is the great Blood Purifier. It is a soothing remedy for our children. It has relieved and cured thousands. It is very pleasant to take, every child likes it.
